Basic Search: Full Catalog

The screenshot shows the GPO Access catalog interface. On the left, there's a sidebar with links for Depository Library Log-in, Full Catalog Searches (Basic, Advanced, Browse), Other Collections to Search, Journals/Serials, Online Resources, Congressional Resources, New Acquisitions, Results List, Previous Searches, Search Tips, and About the CGP. Below that is a section for RELATED RESOURCES with links to FDLP Desktop, U.S. Government Bookstore, and GPO Access.

The main content area has a title "Basic Search: Full Catalog". It features a search bar with a placeholder "Search for:" and a dropdown menu set to "Keywords (anyw)". Below the search bar are "Go" and "Clear" buttons. To the right of the search bar is a note about examples: "Example(s) "endangered species" telev* and children not advertising (woman or female) and leaders".

A red arrow points from the "Keywords (anyw)" dropdown menu to a callout box with a red border. The callout box contains the following text:

Basic Search dropdown box contents:

Locate Libraries

The screenshot shows a Windows-based web browser window displaying the GPO Access website. The title bar reads "CGP OPAC Displays Locate Libraries". The address bar shows the path "C:\Documents and Settings\jdowgiallo\Desktop\ILS Graphics\ILS_template.dwt". The main content area is titled "Locate Libraries" and features the "GPO Access Federal Locator Services". It displays the selected item: "Code of federal regulations: [Washington, D.C.: Office of the Federal Register, National Archives and Records Administration, [2004]]". An "Item Number" field contains "0572-B". Below it, there are five dropdown menus for selecting state abbreviations. A note says "For a more specific listing, enter up to three 3-digit telephone area codes. Example: 202" with three input fields below. A section for "Search All" includes radio buttons for "No" and "Yes". At the bottom, there are "Submit", "Clear", and "Cancel" buttons. The left sidebar contains links for "Depository Library Log-in", "Full Catalog Searches" (Basic, Advanced, Browse), "Other Collections to Search" (Journals/Serials, Online Resources, Congressional Resources, New Acquisitions), "Results List", "Previous Searches", "Search Tips", and "About the CGP". The bottom of the page states "A service of the U.S. Government Printing Office. 2005."

The OPAC Drawing Board

The OPAC will be available to the public and the FDLP library community 24/7 with the exception of scheduled downtimes (TBD). The current Catalog of U.S. Government Publications (CGP), a WAIS application, will be replaced by the OPAC. By extension, New Electronic Titles (NET) also will be replaced.

The CGP OPAC will have the following features on “go live day”:

- Pre-defined search for “New Electronic Titles” (NET)
- New acquisitions lists
- Search options:
 - Basic search
 - Advanced or guided
 - Browse
 - Common Command Language
- “Locate Libraries”
- Logical bases or collections to search:
 - Congressional resources
 - Journals/Serials
 - Online resources

Planned features:

- Special features for depository libraries (behind the “Depository Library Log-in”)
 - Selective dissemination of information – ability to have searches automatically performed and e-mailed
- Generate notification for online resources (a.k.a. “shipping list” for EL titles)
- MetaLib federated search capability
 - Agency online databases
 - National library catalogs
- SFX open URL reference linking
- “Quick Catalog Search” box on FDLP Desktop pages
